Most people are unaware of just how ... hmmm, historical is too small a word ... historical in the multiverse ... the events we're involved in are.

Do I mean the worldwide takedown of the Illuminati, cabal, deep state? No, as stunning as that is.

Do I mean President Trump's amazing first hundred days? No. As uplifting as that is.

Do I mean the demise of woke culture, DEI, and all deep-state programs designed to divide and allow them to conquer? No, as incredible as all those are.

I mean our planetary Ascension - creating a new species of human, homo universalis, on an Earth that swims in a love like we never imagined it could be.
(1)

I nearly jump out of my Third-Dimensional skin every time I think of it.

As we transition, some of the things that hold us back are the lack of workable and inspiring paradigms and a world game.

A “paradigm” is an idea whose function is to provide a foundation or basis for other ideas to organize themselves around.

A “game” as is used here is a process leading to growth and/or enlightenment played by people of integrity earnest on achieving the game’s end.

A world game is an idea developed by Buckminster Fuller and amplified by Werner Erhard. By the time Werner worked his magic on it, the idea had become “a world that works for everyone.”

Yes, yes, yes. I see a hand over there. The world cannot be made to work for everyone.

Aha. You know that’s not true. As it turns out, this Third Dimension we’re “leaving” (we don’t go anywhere), is the only dimension in which the world DOES NOT work out for everyone.

The love that exists on all the higher dimensions, where we’re “headed,” ensures that all works out.

We don’t experience that love here so we’re taking another’s word for it. But soon enough we’ll be experiencing it, as the lovelight vibrations continue to increase.

The work of this booklet is to describe the two existing paradigms and one “game” which have shaped our worldview for probably centuries, discard them, and offer a different set that aligns with our magnificent Ascension, in progress.

Our “travel ticket” for our Ascension, as Matthew Ward has called it, is the lovelight in our heart. I daresay anyone reading this has a supertrain reservation.

Ivo: Yes. This is an extinction event. On planet Earth, only certain types of DNA will evolve or ascend. Other types of DNA will not. Homo Sapiens is slated for extinction. Homo Universalis will prevail. (“Ivo of Vega: The Nature of Negativity,” through Sharon Stewart, February 22, 2021. at <https://> “Extinction” does not imply a tragic series of events. It simply means no more homo sapiens will be born. The transition will not be noticeable physically.

We Need a New Paradigm and a New Game

Aug. 30, 3025

<https://goldenageofgaia.com/2025/08/30/we-need-a-new-paradigm-and-a-new-game/>

[To hear audio, go to <https://goldenageofgaia.com/wp-content/uploads/2025/08/We-Need-a-New-Paradigm-and-a-New-Game.mp3>.]

We need a new paradigm and a new game.

The old game, which we've allowed to play out again and again is based on two paradigms. The first is empirical materialism, which says that only what we can physically sense is real. You can see that spirituality goes out the window.

The second is social Darwinism, or the law of the jungle. It holds that resources are scarce and life becomes a struggle for existence in which only the strongest survive. (1)

These two paradigms have never served the mass of humanity; only the elite prosper, as we now see.

We need new paradigms. We need new games. Here I'd like to look at two new games.

Let me illustrate one of them that I learned from the growth movement - the game of awareness. Most of this article will be on that.

In the course of it, I'll arrive at a second game - a world game created by Buckminster Fuller and Werner Erhard: Creating a world that works for everyone. I'll simply introduce that here and look at it in more depth in another article.

The only rule in the game of awareness is that you remain aware of yourself and share what you see when appropriate.

The last operation in our individuated life is one of awareness, Self-Recognition, or Self-Knowledge ("O Thou I!"). (2) Let me illustrate that game - the awareness game - by taking myself and looking at my relationship to peace.

I'm going to sit down right now and write Wait, I've run out of cream. Darn. Hmm... Where did I put my glasses. How do I stop my screen from getting bigger and smaller on its own? How frustrating it all is.

My everyday circumstances furnish me with enough challenges to the unruffled kind of peace.

And then I hear again something Michael said to me in only our second reading of ten years of them:

Archangel Michael: "Your job is to participate and to lead in a worldwide peaceful revolution, for peace the time is now. ..."

"And we do not mean an absence of war. We mean the presence of peace as you have been describing it." (3)

As a future CEO of humanitarian enterprises, I'm working on leadership. I was the youngest of two so I more or less spent my life as an aide de camp rather than a leader. I awaited the decision and then got to work.

But I'm open. As long as my contribution is in writing because writing is what I love to do.

But it's the second comment that I really want to discuss: "We do not mean an absence of war. We mean the presence of peace as you have been describing it."

Yes, I know precisely what he's talking about here. Having a soul contract to write about these matters, I get an unusual number of spiritual experiences to write about. (4) And one of them was an experience of peace not just as external quiet, but as an internal, experienced state of consciousness.

You pay me to write about these experiences, given that they highlight a path, whether we take them or not, do you not? Hopefully this discussion triggers insights for you as well.

The awareness path is my chosen path overall, (5) but this lifetime I'm also following the path of karma yoga or service.

The experience of peace I referred to above happened while I was meditating, as I relate here:

"I felt as if I were on a train, watching it slowly leave the station and looking at the faces as they passed by. I suddenly saw a red-headed man [St. Germaine?] who had a remarkable composure to him. I was struck by it on a spiritual level and took a mental snapshot.

"As soon as the man was recognized, it was as if he shot out an energetic dart at me. A bond was made. And I said to myself: "I know this depth of peace that this man has shown me. It's the Natural Self."

"Immediately I found myself sinking into a deep, deep sense of peace, way down deep. I ended up in a place that was absolutely solid. It was as if I were standing on a slab of granite." (6)

Michael later called the experience "interdimensional travelling." (7)

Since peace is a divine quality, and hence of a much higher vibration than we normally resonate with or at, we have no language to describe it. Just as we have no language to describe higher-dimensional love, so here, too, we can only talk about its impact on us.

I experienced peace in two phases. The first held as long as I retained the consciousness that "I am my body." As long as I identified with my body, my experience of peace was like standing on granite, sure of my ground, not needing anything.

Michael used the word "granite" to talk about peace twice during this time. (8)

And then I remembered my out-of-body experience in 1977 (9) and that I was not this body and the experience of peace shifted to a softer, gentler space.

Remembering that I experienced my own purity and innocence at Xenia on Sept. 18, 2018, (10) let me bring that in here to say that in the first phase of peace - standing on granite, sure of my footing, stand, stance, etc. - I could have chosen a military career.

In the second phase of peace, an active life, it would have been almost out of the question. I think we call the second kind of person a "contemplative." That word describes me this lifetime.

I'm feeling peaceful at the moment, with just wisps of bliss. But they are different. I'm choosing to remain in peace and not be uplifted by bliss, surrendering to the experience of the former for the time being.

I have no worries. Nothing is tugging on me.

OK, I got it. I've just had a minor realization, an Aha! or transformational moment. This peace is the space in which the divine qualities show up for me. This is a foundational space, returning me to my original purity and innocence.

Love is showing up now.

Peace is like the floor in the Baskin Robbins Shoppe of Love. Now, well-seated and prepared, I order my cone from one of the flavors of Love and enjoy it.

Yes, that's the relationship between peace and the other divine qualities: Peace is foundational.

OK, you've just heard me following the path of awareness to an experience of peace, which I remained with until it revealed something of itself: It's a floor for the other divine states to appear on. A dance of love, joy, bliss, etc., happens on a dance floor of peace.

I've shifted from minding anyone else's business to minding only my own. What a contribution to world peace that is!

And awareness fits with our accepted spiritual practices: If we seek peace, we first seek the quiet and stillness of bare awareness as the pre-requisite to the other experiences. The attainment of peace is not normally sought or found amid the guns of war.

Finally, world peace is mandated by GESARA (the Global Economic Security and Reformation Act). (11) The rising vibrations guarantee it. I write this to make sure we're aware of it and how it will come regardless of any other factor.

So we know where we're headed: Global prosperity and world peace in a world that works for everyone.

For me, that is the new global game. (12)

(12) Global prosperity and world peace are the answer to social Darwinism. The law of the jungle does not prevail in the end.

Buckminster Fuller invented a "world game" around the idea of a world that works for all:

“Make the world work, for 100% of humanity, in the shortest possible time, through spontaneous cooperation, without ecological offense or the disadvantage of anyone.” (Buckminster Fuller Institute at <https://www.bfi.org/about-fuller/big-ideas/world-game/>.)

Here is the New Game

August 31, 2025

Yesterday I said that we needed new paradigms and a new game. I've talked about two paradigms that more or less condemn us to failure as a nurturing world.

The first is empirical materialism. It claims to explain the boundaries of our world. Only that which we can sense is deemed to be real.

Social Darwinism is the second. It claims to explain the social process as one of eat or be eaten. It tells us how to survive in a world so constituted.

Both are fundamentally mistaken in their view of life.

(A) God cannot be seen (or otherwise sensed) ... with physical eyes (or physical senses).

(B) Our collective thoughts shape our world. Be predatory and our world is predatory. Be nurturing and our world would be nurturing.

Now put all that on the shelf.

I looked at the new game that Buckminster Fuller and Werner Erhard laid out for us: A world that works for everyone. (1)

You and I know that such a world is coming - a higher-dimensional world where love is as omnipresent as the air we now breathe. (2) A love which yearns to be shared and IS shared by everyone with everyone else and everything.

We haven't the foggiest notion of the strength and feel of that love. We're lucky if we experience it in a peak moment of union or upon seeing our newborn child.

Oooh, no, I'm trying to be kind. Stop it, Steve.

We'd actually only know it in a spiritual experience that reached up to the higher dimensions. I can only speak for myself, but I did not anticipate in my wildest dreams what ... I'm tempted to call it "quantum" love, just for a joke ... no idea what higher-dimensional love feels like. (3)

But the ones we listen to live in it.

Why is it I can't mention love without going on and on about it? "It's all a journey of love," the Mother says. (4) It really is.

I'm going to need a second part to say what I came in here to say.

What I came in here to say is that we don't need a new paradigm. We already have it.

(Concluded in Part 2.)

Here is the New Paradigm

August 31, 2025

<https://goldenageofgaia.com/2025/08/31/here-is-the-new-paradigm-2/>

[To hear the audio, go to: <https://goldenageofgaia.com/wp-content/uploads/2025/08/Here-is-the-New-Paradigm.mp3>.]

We don't need a new paradigm.

We already have it.

I cannot conceive of a paradigm higher than the divine qualities.

I have never, in reading enlightened authors of all religions and nations, heard anything that suggests, "No, there is more beyond the divine qualities."

There is more, but I'm willing to wager that they are the divine qualities unfolding more.

And I'm not saying "more" as in deeper, more exquisite. Sure, there's more of that. But in terms of a class of phenomena, the "divine qualities," I think, have no second, no rival.

Just as all of us are born of God, the divine qualities are also born of the One among them, Love, which is born of God. (2) The divine qualities are to Love as the One is to us.

Not like I know. But again I feel no tremor, no feeling of doubt from inside, no reservation. And I would. Instead I feel a wave of love, which says to me I'm on the right track

I cannot conceive of anything higher. Yes, more enlightenment. But what is that but a sunburst of love?

I can see why the Mother would say that, if she showed me the full Self as it is, I'd leave my work, saying, "I do not need to do this. I will just simply sit in the bliss of love and good luck, everybody!" (3) That is a strong counter-attraction to our specific lightworker missions.

We've spent our collective lives until now following paradigms that say nothing beyond the senses is real and life is a struggle for existence. And what has it gotten us? One step away from collective annihilation. This after the Intergalactic Wars we've heard so much about.

Isn't it time to acknowledge that nothing any earthly voice, weighted down by empirical materialism and social Darwinism, has urged has worked and listen to what those who know, who inhabit dimensions filled with love, have to say?

If so, then it follows, like day follows night, that we'll be led to the divine qualities as our paradigm. Nothing else matters than to embrace them. Nothing else would need to be done.

Everything would be effortless and clear, simple and satisfying. All would get done with care and consideration.

Granted there would, then, be nothing we lack. We'd have powers of manifestation. But in terms of our feeling state, our sense of ourselves, or any sense of lack, the love we'll then experience will satisfy all needs and desires, save one - the desire for more love.

So, yes, we don't need a new paradigm. We already have one - the divine qualities.
